This mosque, with its six meion shaped domes, is the tomb of a most amusing old Moslem who died about the middle of the last century. This Moslem got possession in Tunis of four targe anchors which probably belonged to some old men-ofwar abandoned on account of stress of weather. The gentleman with the long name was not content with any such prosaic explanation of their origin. By means of the labor of 500 Arabs be had the anchors dragged from Tunis and deposited in front of his house, The transportation took five months. He then declared them to be the anchors by which Nonh fastened the ark to Mount Ararat. The relics are now in the mosque of their former owner and are regarded as noly.

The perspiring lawyer realized the sarcasm of the remark, but proved equal to the occasion. "The rules? Oh, they are quite simple," he replied. It will take an honest man several weeks to master these two rules. After driving the ball you must hit it wherever it lies. Good lies are as important in golf as in fishing. Losing a ball costs you two strokes and the price of the ball. Hitting a caddle with the ball is justifiable homicide." -New York Tribune.
